Nous apprécions sa plénitude, ses saveurs, ses beaux épices complexes. Un cru qui se remarque par sa hauteur de vue dans l'appellation.

Tasting notes « en primeur », April 2013

Bettane et Desseauve

15

Great success through a balance between the potential maturity in this difficult vintage and the beautiful bitters of the late greedy mouth.

René Gabriel

16

Beautiful garnet red robe. Expressive nose slightly earthy with aromas of plum, blackberry, notes of coffee in final. On the palate the tannins are smoother than usual bringing a silky finish.

A Cru Bourgeois Classic.

Jancis Robinson

16

Very dark purplish crimson. Rather sumptuous nose with mineral hints. Far from heavy-weight but nicely balanced and very appetizing. A gentle hand on the extraction tiller here. Attractive early drinking.

Roger Voss, Wine Enthusiast

89-91

This crispy fruity wine is very fresh in character with intense black currant acidity followed by wood spice and background tannins.

Quite Intense and neat on the nose with, unusually, some complexity. Round and with a light tannic charge but without too much acidity. Pleasant early drinking

NEAL MARTIN

What a lovely bouquet on this Haut-Medoc with violets, cassis and blackberries...very Margaux like. The palate is medium-bodied with tensile tannins, nice focus and tension here with good mineralité on the finish. Great potential. Tasted April 2011.

WINE SPECTATOR James Molesworth – April 2011, en primeur

This is packed, with dark plum sauce, anise and tar notes, which all flow through the dark, lush, well-rounded finish, with a lilting violet note. —J.M.

JANCIS ROBINSON

Mid weight and very Cabernet – almost like a varietal Cabernet! Chewy end.

Dark color, almost black. Expressive nose. Ripe fruit, fine and elegant structure, freshness.
Silky tannins

WINE SPECTATOR

90/100

Focused, with a single apple wood frame propelling the core of plum, cassis and black cherry fruit.
The solid finish lets hints of charcoal and anise in, displaying fine cut.

James Molesworth – February 2013

WINE ENTHUSIAST

91/100

Dark in color, this is a concentrated wine that's very firm in structure, with dense tannins. It's powered by ripe, mature black fruits as well as acids that cut through the dry texture.

Roger Voss – February 2013
